Dan: ...primarily a youth development organization.

(Exterior - Conservation Corps employees gathered in parking lot)

Dan: We use community projects such as tree planting...

(Medium shot of Dan shaking an employee's hand in parking lot)

Dan: ...community gardens, urban forestry...

Dan: ...habitat restoration, recycling, as a means for youth development. Young people come to us looking for their first job.

(Exterior - Dan in parking speaking to all employees)

Dan: It's an opportunity for them to be engaged in their community, give back to their community.

Dan: Conservation Corps of Long Beach banks with International City Bank.

(Exterior - International City Bank Building)

That's been the only bank we've ever banked with from day one...

Dan: ...and I am ecstatic at the relationship we have with ICB. They are a phenomenal bank. They're very attentive.

(Exterior - Close-up of International City Bank sign)

Dan: They're very personal.

(Dan on screen)

Dan: I couldn't be happier with the quality of service, their support. I can't imagine a better banking relationship between a non-profit and a local bank like ICB.

(Exterior - Conservation Corps truck pulling out of parking lot)

Dan: They understand the way we do business.

(Exterior - Dan standing in front of Conservation Corps sign)

Dan: They understand our business.

(Dan on screen)

Dan: They've customized their service for an organization like ours and I don't think you would get that in a larger bank. I'm floored at the quality of service and, you know, the attentiveness that we get from ICB. They reach out to me and ask me, "How's it going? Is there anything else we could do?" I would never get that from a large chain or a large...
